Greetings on the Occasion of the 40th Anniversary of IUC

The IUC is celebrating 40 years as an independent international organisation, performing genuine university activities. In last four decades altogether more than 67000 students and professors worked together in more than 1800 top class graduate courses and conferences. Always aiming at excellence in science many of the IUC programmes also tackle various problems of the modern world. In the inspiring ambience of the historical town of Dubrovnik participants from different parts of the Globe contribute to building a world of understanding and tolerance. IUC organisation, mission and achievements vouch for the Centre's long future.

Prof. Krunoslav Pisk
Director General

About 40 years ago it was mainly a bipolar world, and Inter-University Centre was founded to establish and strengthen links and understanding between East and West. Today, we live in a multi-polar world confronted with a variety of novel threats. The contemporary world is becoming global, but when facing many of these threats it fragments. What is the role of Inter-University Centre today? Is it still a unique association as it was 40 years ago? Education and knowledge are positively correlated with human welfare and life satisfaction. We hope they increase creativity and wisdom. Through courses, through intensive connections with numerous universities, research institutions and academies, through international workshops and conferences Inter-University Centre contributes toward realizing a society emphasizing and increasing human and social capitals - a global society of individual human beings, of sovereign states and of variety of social structures aimed at increasing life satisfaction and welfare of all human beings.

Academician Ivo Šlaus
Acting Chair of the IUC Council

As an established promoter of the Croatian and world science, the Inter-University Centre Dubrovnik, during its forty years of activity, confirmed its status as a unique international institution of higher education and science in the Republic of Croatia; an institution open for meetings, exchange of ideas and research results as well as for the cooperation of scientists in all scientific areas all over the world.

It is my pleasure and honour to provide the Auspices to the conference "The Dream of a Global Knowledge Society", which celebrates this year's high IUC anniversary. Thanks to the eminent scientists from the respectable world universities participating in this important and relevant conference theme, it contributes to the raising awareness of the importance of internationalisation of science and higher education and significance of future inter-disciplinary and inter-institutional cooperation. Moreover, it gives evidence of the Croatian scientists' readiness and engagement to further integrate into European and world academic and scientific sphere.

Congratulating the 40th anniversary of the foundation and activity of the Inter-University Centre Dubrovnik, I wish the participants of the Conference effective and successful meeting as well as pleasant and fulfilling stay in Dubrovnik, the cultural and historical centre of the Croatian South.

Prof. Ivo Josipović
President of the Republic of Croatia

Foundation & History

The Inter-University Centre has lived a rich life so far and has taken great pride in serving as a venue for scholarly cooperation. It is all set to continue its mission.

The idea of the IUC developed in response to urgent affairs; there was a cold war going on. Concerned scholars saw the importance of creating new opportunities for contact and exchange of knowledge and ideas across division lines. Would it be possible to create strong arenas where scholars from various parts of the world could meet to pursue important scientific issues in a diplomatic and peace-generating way? There was a wish to strengthen the role of scientists in bridge-building between nations and cultures, ideologies and political systems, rather than continuing the troublesome schisms that the world had become so used to over the decades following World War II.

Plans for a United Nations university were being discussed in the late 1960's. In a meeting of university leaders in Montreal in 1970, the Rector of the University of Zagreb at that time, Ivan Supek, proposed an alternative or a supplement that won wide support. He said, let us build an Inter-University Centre that is fully in the hands of the cooperating scholars and universities themselves – an institution free of government control. Luckily, the city of Dubrovnik had offered Supek a building that could serve as a home for the kind of international centre he envisioned.

It must be remembered that Yugoslavia held a unique position at the time; Yugoslavia under Tito was non-aligned. It had the potential to provide conditions for contacts that could not otherwise be achieved. Dubrovnik, with its rich history, culture, its beauty and friendly atmosphere, certainly appeared as an ideal site, and an Inter-University Centre located here could also serve as a breathing-hole between East and West. For example, scholars from Eastern Europe were allowed to travel to Dubrovnik, whilst to a large extent countries in the West were beyond reach. So, a small group of individuals representing a handful of universities internationally were invited to come to Dubrovnik to consider Supek's idea.

The decision was made: The Inter-University Centre was to become reality, and work was started to establish a viable organization and a sound basis for effective operation.

The centre could not have been established and could not have entered into its successful life, had it not been for the generosity extended to it by the University of Zagreb. While the IUC has benefited from the generosity of the University of Zagreb, it has given much in return by connecting young scholars from Croatia and its broader region to active and generous international networks of scholars.

The Inter-University Centre soon became a very attractive venue for academic exchange. From the few universities represented by the founders, the number of universities formally associated with the IUC grew to more than 250 before the outbreak of the wars in 1991. Following the wars the number of member universities has declined to approximately 170.

Now the level of programme activities in courses and conferences remains as high as ever, and IUC Dubrovnik in competition with other actors on the international scholarly arena provides a whole series of extensive programmes to promote study abroad and to globalize higher education. Scholars, students and teachers keep coming; they are happy to be in Dubrovnik and they are usually eager to come back for new IUC events.

IUC Mission

The Inter-University Centre (IUC) Dubrovnik is an independent, international institute for advanced studies. Its mission is to foster progress in the humanities, social sciences, natural sciences, maths and medicine by encouraging and promoting international cooperation among researchers and students. It pursues this mission primarily by organising and hosting conferences, courses, and study programmes, and by building regional and global networks for academic exchange. It seeks to promote scientific excellence and independent scholarship in an atmosphere of pluralism and peaceful coexistence. The IUC draws inspiration from the historical place of Dubrovnik as a self-governing city-state and meeting point at the crossroads of cultural and political concerns. Founded in 1972, the IUC became an important venue for the exchange of ideas across east and west, north and south, helping to overcome blocs and promoting understanding. Today, the IUC builds on its traditions and achievements in the changed global environment. Since its foundation, more than 67,000 scholars and students have come to the IUC from universities and other academic institutions across the world. Topics of particular attention in IUC conferences and courses include: Southeast Europe studies, Mediterranean studies, regions and regionalism, conflict and peace, human rights and legal studies, philosophy, information sciences, life sciences, and public health.

Support & Scholarships & Credit Points

The IUC is unfortunately not in a position to provide any scholarships, since there are no financial means available to set up appropriate grant programmes, but there are two IUC related funds offering support especially for IUC courses:

- The Croatian Ministry of Science, Education and Sports provides graduate students and professors from Croatia with three scholarships per course which cover travel expenses and half board accommodation. Applications are submitted by course directors or interested candidates directly to the IUC Secretariat. For application form visit <http://iuc.hr/croatian-ministry.php>.
- The Open Society Institute is supporting advanced students and young faculty members studying and working in the fields of humanities and social sciences from Southeast Europe and the Former Soviet Union region at IUC courses with scholarships (accommodation and in some cases partial travel compensation). For information visit <http://iuc.hr/hesp-osi.php>.

Furthermore, preferential attention should be paid to national funding institutions and foundations often providing scholarships or grants for postgraduate courses, e.g. DAAD (German Academic Exchange Service) offers stipends and support of new courses. For information visit <http://daad.de/stipends> - Official Austrian grants database can be found at www.grants.at.

Course and conference participants are kindly requested to approach their course directors, the academic exchanges service at their home university and the internet for further inquiries.

A certificate is awarded to each student who attends a full course and satisfactorily completes a written contribution in the field of study for the course. Course director decide in accordance with the university and the respective graduate and research training programmes, how many European credit transfer points are awarded. ECTS points will be measured by the necessary workload of the student to achieve defined learning outcomes and competences. The workload includes time the student needs for lectures, seminars, independent work, reading, writing papers and exam.
