

Academic Programme Courses & Conferences 2009/2010

Summer 2009 Dubrovnik www.iuc.hr

Mission

Home of the IUC Don Frana Bulića 4 The Inter-University Centre Dubrovnik (IUC) is an independent international institution for advanced studies. Its objective is to encourage, promote and implement cooperation among students and scholars through projects, study programmes, courses and conferences across a wide range of academic concerns. Over the years, more than 60,000 scholars and students came from universities and other scientific institutions worldwide. Founded in 1971, at the height of the Cold War, the IUC became an important venue for the exchange of ideas across various divides, between East and West, North and South.

Based in Dubrovnik, formerly a self-governing Mediterranean city-state at the crossroads of varying cultural and political concerns, the IUC is building on its achievements and traditions in facing new challenges in a rapidly changing global environment. Maintaining high standards of free and independent scholarship, the IUC is dedicated to network building for peaceful co-existence and pluralism regionally as well as internationally.

Main Topics are: SE Europe studies – philosophy – conflict & peace – information sciences – life sciences – mediterrainean studies – public health – reconstruction of science and higher education in the region – regions and regionalism – post-conflict reconciliation.

Academic Programme

The main IUC activities are courses and conferences. Courses are of postgraduate level and treat topics of high international scientific or academic interest. They normally last one or two weeks. The organizers and teaching staff are selected for their expertise and academic standing, and come from a diversity of countries and backgrounds. Students coming from many parts of the world expected to be of graduate standing; they apply through course directors or directly to the IUC Secretariat. Conferences normally last at least for a few days. The IUC welcomes proposals to develop new international graduate courses and conferences in all academic fields. Foundation & History

Ivan Supek

The Inter-University Centre has lived a rich life so far and has taken great pride in serving as a venue for scholarly cooperation. It is all set to continue its mission.

The idea of a centre developed in response to urgent concerns. There was a cold war going on. Concerned scholars saw the importance of creating new opportunities for contact and exchange of knowledge and ideas across division lines. Would it be possible to create strong arenas where scholars from various parts of the world could meet to pursue important scientific issues in a peaceful and peace-generating way? There was a wish to strengthen the role of scientists in bridge-building between nations and between cultures, between ideologies and between political systems, rather than continuing the troublesome schisms that the world had become so used to over the decades following World War II.

Plans for a United Nations university were being discussed in the late 1960s. In a meeting of university leaders in Montreal in 1970, the Rector of the University of Zagreb at that time, Ivan Supek, proposed an alternative or a supplement that won wide support. He said, let us build an inter-university centre that is fully in the hands of the cooperating scholars and universities themselves – an institution free of government control.

Luckily, the city of Dubrovnik had offered Supek a building that could serve as a home for the kind of centre that he foresaw.

It must be remembered that Yugoslavia held a unique position at the time: Yugoslavia under Tito was non-aligned. It had the potential to provide conditions for contacts that could not otherwise be achieved. Dubrovnik, with its rich history and culture – and its beauty and friendly atmosphere – certainly appeared as an ideal site – and an inter-university centre here could also serve as a breathing-hole between East and West. For example, scholars from Eastern Europe were allowed to travel to Dubrovnik, whilst – to a large extent – countries in the West were beyond reach.

IUC Building Staircase

The decision was made: The Inter-University Centre was to become reality, and work was started to establish a viable organization and a sound basis for effective operation.

The centre could not have been established and could not have entered into its successful life, had it not been for the generosity extended to it by the University of Zagreb. While the IUC has benefited from the generosity of the University of Zagreb, it has given much in return by connecting young scholars from Croatia and its broader region to active and generous international networks of scholars

Lecture Hall

The Inter-University Centre soon became a very attractive venue for academic exchange. From the few universities represented by the founders, the number of universities formally associated with the IUC grew to more than 250 before the outbreak of the wars in 1991. Following the wars the number of member universities has declined to approximately 170 today. Now the level of programme activities in courses and conferences remains as high as ever and IUC Dubrovnik in competition with other actors on the international scholarly arena provides a whole series of extensive programmes to promote study abroad and to globalize higher education.

Scholars, students and teachers keep coming. They are happy to be in Dubrovnik – and they are usually eager to come back for new IUC events.

IUC Facilities

The following facilities are available:

- Lecture Hall (up to 110 places),
- 3 large classrooms (up to 45 places),
- 5 medium classrooms (up to 35 places),
- All are provided with beamer, projector and air condition / heating,
- Computer room (12 PCs) with internet connection, wireless LAN and printer,
- · Library,
- Courtyard.

Support & Scholarships

The IUC as such is not in a position to provide any scholarships, since there are no financial means available to set up appropriate grant programmes. But there are two IUC related funds offering support especially for IUC courses:

The Croatian Ministry of Science, Education and Sports supports graduate students and professors from Croatia with 5 scholarships per course which cover travel expenses and half board accommodation. Applications are submitted by course directors or interested candidates directly to the IUC Secretariat. For application form visit http://iuc.hr/croatian-ministry.php

The Open Society Institute is supporting advanced students and young faculty members, studying and working in the fields of humanities and social sciences from the SE European and Former Soviet Union region at IUC courses with scholarships (accommodation and in some cases partial travel compensation). For information visit http://iuc.hr/hesp-osi.php

Furthermore, preferential attention should be paid to national funding institutions and foundations often providing scholarships or grants for postgraduate courses, e.g. DAAD (German Academic Exchange Service) offers stipends and support of new courses. For information visit: http://daad.de/stipends

Official Austrian grants database can be found at www.grants.at

Course and conference participants are kindly requested to approach their course directors, the academic exchanges service at their home university, and of course the internet for further inquiries.

Credit points

A certificate is awarded to each student who attends a full course and satisfactorily completes a written contribution in the field of study of the course.

Course directors decide, in accordance with the university and the respective graduate and researcher training programmes is and how many European credit transfer points are awarded. ECTS points will be measured by the necessary workload of the student to achieve defined learning outcomes and competences. The workload includes time the student needs for lectures, seminars, independent work, reading, learning, writing papers and exam.
